Miners shall be considered as residents of the towns within whose districts their mines may be situated with regard to the use of waters, forests, grazing and pasture grounds, and other common benefits relating to their industry, subjecting themselves to the observance of the respective provincial ordinances. They may also establish a cockpit and supply themselves with meats from a slaughterhouse for the mining establishment, provided that the number of workmen employed exceeds 100, and that they pay the lessor or contractor of the land the charges or taxes which may be proper and which are established as a general rule for the benefit of the public treasury or communal funds. The miners shall furthermore enjoy the permission granted to farmers of the first class for the introduction of Chinese laborers engaged in agricultural pur suits, according to a provision in force of the superior civil govern ment of the islands of August 5, 1850; but as mineral deposits are almost always situated in uninhabited and unhealthy points, they Shall pay for every Chinaman the same capitation tax which is paid by natives while he is a mining laborer exclusively.
