Worooster--Swedish lesson--English boys--A prophecy-- Letter--Bequest--Eeplly--The Dolphin. Margate has often been abused, laughed at, and snubbed, but it has never yet been properly described. How shall I describe Margate? It is too difficult to do well, and it has been too often done badly to do it again. The men s bathing here from boats with steps, like those at Malta, is sensible enough. Fine bold swimmers struck out well beside me in the water while I had my morning dip from the yawl. As for the epicene bathing--masculine women and womanish males who partake of sea-bathing by machinery -- separate machines, but that is all-- let us ignore them. Come rather back to France, and let us look at Her Imperial Majesty the Empress Eugenie in the water, as we have seen her years ago. It was at Biarritz, and one day...
