It is from three hundred to five hundred feet above marsh level. It is mostly a rural farming town with about fifteen hundred permanent population and about five hundred summer residents. Some of the latter come in search of health, and all are attracted by the fine air, lovely drives and beautiful scenery of Sharon. The number of summer residents is increasing. People in ao tive busmess in Boston, Providence, and neighboring cities, find here all the attractions, but none of the discomforts and privations of the mountains and other distant places, with the advantage of being within call of the telegraph and quick ride by cars to their places of business. Many such are making Sharon their home. To the permanent resident we present the attraction, beside good health, plenty of land at low prices, good roads, good school houses and schools, no town debt, low taxes, good churches and a growing, prosperous town. Taxes will, this year, be seven mills on a dollar with a discount of six per cent. For prompt payment, making it about six and one-half mills net. This low rate. Is not reached by a high valuation or niggardly appropriations. On the contrary the town has for some years voted all the money asked for by the School Committee and town officers, and usually the money grants are voted unanimously. The town has quite a large permanently invested fund, the income of which is used for schools. There is a good free Public Library. We have Orthodox, Unita rian and Baptist..
